Career Services:

Did you know that 80% of Pitt-Greensburg students complete an internship or experiential learning during their time here? The Office of Career Services offers a wide variety of resources to let students explore what they can do with their major and what types of services are available.

Director of Career Services:

Dorothy Zilic

Program Overview:

Are you interested in American history, society, and/or culture? Then American Studies is the major for you! The multidisciplinary American Studies major is designed for students whose interests in American history, society, and culture cut across departmental and divisional lines. In addition to the requirements listed on the back of this page, all students majoring in American Studies are strongly advised to complete courses in foreign language through the intermediate level.

Highlights:

- Outside of the classroom, internships as well as programs such as the Center for Applied Research, the Center for the Digital Text, and the Green Scholar program provide students with opportunities for experiential learning.
- Students are well supported by an array of student services and activities. With its eye on delivering a robust liberal arts education for the 21st century, Pitt-Greensburg provides students with a high-quality, well-rounded educational experience that prepares them for success in the workforce, in graduate school, and in life.

Get Involved:

With more than 40 clubs on campus, there is no lack of ways to be involved at Pitt-Greensburg. American Studies majors may want to consider joining the History Club or the Spanish Club. Students interested in leadership opportunities should look into joining the Student Government Association and the Greensburg Experience More (GEM) Program.
